

DAVID A. WYLIE

ProfM; MSc; FFPM RGPS(Glasg.)
Dean of Faculty of Podiatric Medicine
Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow

David has been involved in Podiatric practice, clinical education and Allied Health Professions leadership for over 40 years. He is a Fellow of the Faculty of Podiatric Medicine within the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons (Glasgow) where he is also currently Dean. He has two post-graduate degrees, and his research into organizational culture and AHP leadership, together with publications describing large-scale service and system redesign, particularly in foot protection service delivery, provide national and international speaking and consultancy opportunities.

David has been described as 'forcefully optimistic' and has a track record of delivering whole system redesign and cultural transformation programmes to support radical improvements in service delivery, organizational performance, and digital transformation.

A Leadership finalist at NHS Scotland's 2016 Scottish Health Awards, David is a Glasgow Warriors season ticket holder and enjoys pub quizzes, single Islay malts, and a fine red Rioja.
